BRODRICK NEW ALUMNI PRESIDENT

GRAD OF '43 LEADS A BUSY SOCIAL AND PROFESSIONAL LIFE

Dr. Robert J. Brodrick, newly-elected president of the Loyola Alumni Association, is one of Loyola's "eight-year boys," having attended both the high school and the college here.

While in high school, Bob was the winner of the "Representative Loyola Boy" medal, now known as the Alumni medal. He won a similar medal — then called the Rector's medal — at the college.

A graduate of the Class of '43, Bob was the president of his class from the freshman to senior year, and also served as president of the Student Council as well as of Loyola College Athletic Association. In addition, he was a member of the school orchestra and in 1942 coached the high school senior football team.

Following his graduation from Loyola, Bob entered the Faculty of Medicine at McGill University, graduating in 1947 with a degree of M.D., C.M. Next followed five years of post-graduate work in internal medicine, two of which he took in London, England.

Bob's professional background is most impressive:

He is a certified specialist in internal medicine of both the Royal College of Physicians (1952) and the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec.

In addition to conducting a private practice in Westmount, he is a member of the Department of Medicine at St. Mary's and Queen

FATHER P. MALONE

25 YEARS IN THE ### SOCIETY OF JESUS

Very Rev. Patrick G. Malone, SJ, 13th rector of Loyola College, this summer celebrates the 25th anniversary of his entry into the Society of Jesus.

These 25 years span a remarkable career in both clerical and secular activities and have established him as one of the leading English - speaking Jesuits in Canada as well as one of the foremost economists, educators and university administrators.

Prior to his appointment to the present post two years ago, Father Malone was president of Saint Mary's University in Halifax. He was the youngest university head in Canada when named to the presidency in 1956.

Born in 1918 in Belfast, Northern Ireland, he received his early education in Toronto, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Malone, now reside.

Father Malone entered the Society at Guelph, Ont., on Sept. 7, 1936, and was ordained at Toronto's Jesuit Seminary in 1949 by His Eminence James Cardinal MacGuigan.

Following his novitiate and two years of classical studies at St. Ignatius College, Guelph, Father Malone completed three years of study leading to the Licentiate in Philosophy in 1943.

He then completed two years of graduate work in economics at the University of Toronto, obtaining a Master's degree with specialization in labour economics. His thesis dealt with labour organization in French Canada.

In 1945 Loyola's future rector came here as an instructor in economics. The following year he began four years of study leading to the Licentiate in Sacred Theology at the Jesuit Seminary in Toronto, and in 1950 undertook a year of ascetical theology at Namur, Belgium.

He later did further graduate work in economics at Fordham University in New York City.

Father Malone held the post of dean of studies and professor of economics at Saint Mary's University from 1951 to 1956, when he was named president of that institution.

While president of Saint Mary's, he also served as chairman of the Board of Governors of the Atlantic Summer School of Business Administration, as a member of the Board of Governors of the Nova Scotia Technical College, of the Board of Trustees of the Maritime School of Social Work, of the Board of Governors of the Halifax School of Journalism, and as a member of several other civic, cultural and educational organizations and learned societies.

In summer of 1959 he was the Canadian co-director of the World University Service International Seminar at the University College of the West Indies, Jamaica.

Prior to that, Father Malone attended the Carnegie Foundation's Institute for College Presidents at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., where he was the only Canadian among presidents from 35 American universities.

As Loyola's rector, Father Malone is the head of the numerically largest and academically most versatile institution among the many English and French Jesuit-operated institutions of higher learning in this country.

He has some very definite ideas on Loyola's role in education.

"It is not a matter of machinery and buildings," he says, "but philosophy of education and staff dedication that makes a college first rate."

He believes that Loyola must always insist on quality and must always strive for the best.

"Education is a preparation for life," says Father Malone, "and a well educated man should have a solid background in the arts and the sciences."

Under his rectorship Loyola keeps abreast of the latest scientific developments, but without neglecting its traditional strength in the arts and humanities.

The rector has a most ambitious plan for Loyola's future:

During the ten-year development program begun in 1959, some $12,000,000 will have been spent on expansion. This will give Loyola — in addition to the new science block with amphitheatre and science library, which are due for completion this fall — new engineering building, women's college, library, chapel, gymna-

LOYOLA ALUMNUS JUST BACK FROM AFRICA SAYS SOVIET BLOC TECHNICIANS INFILTRATE GUINEA BUT FAIL IN TAKING OVER THE NEW REPUBLIC

Andre Gilbert, B.Sc. '52, who recently returned to Montreal from the Republic of Guinea, says that Soviet bloc nations have provided as many as 2,000 technicians and advisors for the former French colony, but they have not succeeded in taking over the country.

Andre, a specialist in highly advanced communication systems, who studied electrical engineering at Loyola, spent five months assisting the Guinean Defence Ministry establish a country-wide communications network.

He said that when he went to the West African country, which is often considered the most communist-oriented of the newly independent African states, he was regarded with great suspicion by Guinean officials, partly because he was white, partly because he was from a Western nation and partly because he worked in the Defence Ministry with access to its secrets. At the end of two months he was ordered out of the country.

The expulsion order was later rescinded and when his assignment was finished, Guinea refused to permit him to leave unless his employers sent out another French-speaking engineer. He waited a month while a Belgian engineer willing to take his place was located.

"After they decided I could stay, there was no more suspicion — they were very friendly and pleasant, almost too friendly," Andre said.

He believes that his presence in the country was unwelcome to the East-bloc people working there and that they may have pressed for his expulsion.

The communist technicians and advisors in Guinea come from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Poland. There are also Chinese technicians.

"When the communists offer to build, say, a radio station or a printing plant, up to 200 technicians may be sent out but they have no connection with any other project. The Guineans do not easily accept advice from either the East or the West.

"The eastern bloc advisers do not run Guinea — Guineans run Guinea," he emphasized. "They deserve admiration for the way they have attacked their problems."

He said the food supply, a serious problem soon after the country achieved independence, has been improved and unemployment, also serious for a time, is being attacked.

While Andre was there, he organized the installation of communications equipment and trained Guinean workers to operate and maintain it. The men he worked with had had basic training in the skills necessary and he said that by the time he left they were capable of running the equipment and making most necessary repairs to it. He foresaw no continuing need for an engineer to supervise it.

"What they will need is a very well trained technician, not an engineer," he observed.

Andre was picked for the job partly because he is French-speaking but also because after studying at Loyola and McGill, he studied at the Sorbonne in Paris. Most of the leaders of Guinea are also French-educated. Despite this, while the initial period of suspicion of his lasted, he was watched closely and his mail was opened.

Although it is widely believed that a vast majority if not all communist technicians going to a foreign country speak the language of that country — which fact or belief is much envied, particularly in the United States — Andre is of a different opinion, at least as far as Guinea is concerned.

"I have the impression that all these communist technicians and advisors there have a very serious language problem," he said. "They do not speak French well and the Guineans do not speak anything else apart from their native language."

REVEREND JAMES W. DYER, SJ

ST. IGNATIUS LOYOLA NEW PP

Fr. Masterson, '29

PP for Five Years,

Posted to Winnipeg

Rev. James W. Dyer, SJ, dean of Campion Junior College at Regina, Sask., and principal of its high school for the past 13 years, has been appointed pastor of St. Ignatius Loyola Parish.

Father Dyer — no stranger to Loyola, having taught at Loyola High School between 1937 and 1940, and having been its principal from 1944 to 1947 — succeeds Rev. John J. Masterson, SJ, who has been posted to Winnipeg.

The new parish priest was born on Jan. 5, 1909, in Halifax, N.S., and received his early education in the Maritimes. He was graduated from Saint Mary's University in Halifax with a degree of Bachelor of Arts in June 1930, and entered the Society of Jesus in September of the same year.

After four years of novitiate and classical studies at Guelph, Ont., he received a Licentiate in Philosophy in 1937 in Toronto. During World War II he studied theology at Montreal's Immaculate Conception, winning a Licentiate in Sacred Theology in 1944.

(Basildon Studio, Montreal)

Father Dyer was ordained on Aug. 15, 1943, in the Immaculate Conception Church by the late Bishop Guy, OMI, and took his tertianship at Decatur, Ill.

For a number of years he has been closely associated with young peoples' work and was moderator for the Central Student Council of the Regina area. While at Regina, he spent most summers giving retreats to lay people and religious or in parish work in the Yellowstone area of Montana.

(Basilidon Studio, Montreal)

Father Masterson, who has been parish priest of St. Ignatius Loyola parish since 1956, has been named curate of St. Ignatius parish in Winnipeg.

He was born on Nov. 26, 1908, in Chesterville, Ont., where his family resided until shortly before World War I, when they moved to Haileybury, Ont.

He received his early schooling at Ottawa College and, when his parents moved to Montreal in 1922, he came to Loyola. In 1925 he entered the Society of Jesus, studying at Guelph, Montreal, Toronto and coming to Loyola to teach between 1932 and 1935.

Father Masterson studied theology at Montreal's Immaculate Conception and was ordained on Aug. 14, 1938. He also spent a year of study at Seattle, Wash. He was then sent to teach at St. Paul's College in Winnipeg, remaining there from 1939 to 1944.

In 1944, he was named minister at Loyola College, looking after temporalities here until 1946. Between 1946 and 1949 he was initially in charge of first year college students and then, Dean of Men for two years.

In 1949, Father Masterson became a member of the faculty of Loyola High School, where he taught languages until his appointment as pastor of St. Ignatius Loyola parish five years ago.

On the occasion of his departure from Montreal, Father Masterson was honoured by members of the parish at a testimonial dinner held at the Ritz Carlton Hotel on July 8.

WORK ON CHARTER, FINANCING COLLEGE EXPANSION SCHOLARSHIPS AND STUDENT LOAN FUND — REMAIN NEW PRESIDENT'S PROGRAMME FOR THE ASSOCIATION

Dr. R. Brodrick's

Acceptance Speech

When the Chairman of the Nominating Committee asked me to stand for nomination, I gave the decision careful thought. Partly because I recognize the growing demands in time the office of the President is making, but mainly because I have found myself perplexed and unhappy that, in spite of the tremendous efforts made by previous executives over many years, we have failed to mobilize the full strength of our alumni.

In considering this decision many questions presented themselves. Is the Alumni Association really necessary? If so what are its aims? What is its purpose? Why does it exist?

It seemed there were the same two answers to all these questions. As I see it, the essential reasons for the existence of an alumni association are twofold: Firstly, to offer an opportunity for the graduates of that school to continue to serve their Alma Mater; and secondly, to afford the Alma Mater an opportunity to continue to serve their graduates in the broad field of life-long education. It is a reciprocal relationship.

Social activities, reunions, where we revive old friendships, relive happier times and enjoy a little nostalgia, are all good things and should be an important part of the activities of any alumni group. But they are not the essentials — they should be the extras — the fringe benefits as it were. An alumni association held together solely on the basis of social activities and the flimsy thread of nostalgia has little hope for long range influence or long range survival.

I feel that our Association has relied too long on this one phase of alumni activities, that we have too long been concerned with the social trimmings and have not directed our efforts sufficiently towards what I consider the two main purposes for our existence, that is, to serve our College and in turn to have our own needs served by the College. In other words we have not sufficiently identified the more mature motivations of our alumni.

How are we going to achieve these goals in the future? How are we going to mobilize our ever expanding potential and widen our dimensions into a greater and more generous alumni partnership?

New and more imaginative programs must be launched. We must seek out young leadership in continuing and developing these new programs. I wonder how many of you have thought that with the tremendous recent increase in our enrollment in the past few years that the mean age of our alumni has decreased considerably and will do so even more in the future. We must establish closer liaison with the graduating class and with the young graduates than we have done in the past. For instance, we might consider some liaison between the Alumni Association and the Student Placement Bureau.

Growth in the number of our alumni poses problems in communications. A few phone calls — though still the best method — no longer seem to be able to round up all our alumni. We must give thought to new techniques in methods of contacting our members. A committee to investigate our programs of activities has suggested the re-establishment of the Ladies Auxiliary with perhaps this thought in mind. Most certainly our Alumni office will need ever increasing strength.

A stronger development programme must be established. If we are to make our maximum contribution to the College it must be in a very tangible way, that is, we must be in the position, to help finance the ever-growing expansion of Loyola. Along the same lines we must broaden our assistance to worthy students and continue to support our Scholarship and Student Loan Funds.

We have not explored the possibilities in the field of continuing alumni education. I would like to

CATHOLIC CHURCH ACCEPTS CONTROLS TO OPERATE IN COMMUNIST COUNTRIES BUT WON'T COMPROMISE ON PRINCIPLE

CANADIAN PRESS INTERVIEW WITH TWO LOYOLA PROFESSORS GETS WORLD-WIDE PUBLICITY

A recent Canadian Press interview by its Montreal staff writer, Alan Duckett, with Loyola College's Rev. Lionel Stanford, SJ, and Rev. Hugh MacKinnon, SJ, has been carried by newspapers from coast to coast in this country, in the United States and across the world.

Father Stanford, a 1929 Loyola graduate and holder of a Licence in Sacred Theology, is professor of theology here and is well known to the alumni as the former moderator of the Loyola Alumni Association. Father MacKinnon, who received a doctorate (D.Phil.) from Oxford two years ago, is chairman of the Department of History at the college. This summer he is making a study of medieval penitential literature at the Bodleian Library of the University of Oxford under a post-doctoral Canada Council Grant.

Because of the timeliness and seriousness of the subject, we present the highlights of the interview here.

The Roman Catholic church usually finds it in its interests to co-operate with the state in communist-dominated countries and in situations such as that now developing in Cuba, Father Stanford told Canadian Press during the interview.

"But" he added, "the church will never compromise on principle."

Father Stanford discussed the situation in communist-dominated countries where the church is still functioning, although on a restricted basis. He said the same potential situation appears to exist in Cuba.

CONTROLLED PRIESTHOOD

Asked to explain what is meant by "controlled priesthood," he said:

"It is in the interests of the church to make the best of a bad situation. It is better to have priests under government control in certain situations than to have no priests at all."

He went on to say that controlled priesthood existed in many countries.

"In Mexico, for example, priests are not allowed to appear on the streets in clerical garb nor are they permitted to hang crucifixes in public places.

"Of course, this does not involve a compromise of principle. Priests are still allowed to fulfil the duties of their ministry," he pointed out.

NO SET RULES

Father Stanford pointed out that there was no defined Catholic doctrine for controlled priesthood. The church always tried to make the best arrangement it could with any government so that it could continue its work.

"The post-communion from the Mass of a Pope asks the Lord 'to guide Thy church which Thou hast nourished with heavenly food, so that under Thy mighty sway she may ever enjoy freedom and remain steadfast in the fullness of her faith'.

"However, rather than deprive the people of a state of all ministrations of the clergy, she may tolerate some curtailment of her freedom"

RESTRICTION OF FREEDOM

"When we speak of 'controlled clergy,'" Father Stanford continued, "we have in mind a restriction of the freedom of the church in the performance of its ministry. But freedom, valuable and necessary as it is for human existence, is not an end in itself.

"Freedom always is concerned with choice, and choice is of the means, not the end as such . . . And bringing souls to God is more important than freedom of the clergy, though the latter is normally necessary for the former, just as medicine is often necessary for the maintenance of good health.

"But just as a sick man in prison will settle for half the amount of medicine he should have, instead of none at all, so, under a dictatorship, the church may settle for half the freedom her priests should have if the only alternative is total exclusion from the country . . .

"If the price of being permitted to exist in any country is compromise in faith or morals, however, it is too high and the church will never pay it," Father Stanford emphasized.

ACTIVE IN MONTREAL DURING WINTER, ACROSS CANADA AND ABROAD IN SUMMER

EVERY SEVENTH STUDENT
ENGAGED IN FREE WORK
AMONG LESS FORTUNATE

Loyola College's "Peace Corps" — which has been in operation for a number of years prior to the establishment of President Kennedy's Peace Corps and the Canadian Overseas Volunteers — takes no holidays in its year-round drive to help the less fortunate.

While most students in their late teens and early twenties are vacationing or working to earn tuition fees, 10 of the students in the college's social welfare movement donate their holidays to working with delinquent teenagers in trouble spots across the continent.

Still more give their spare time during the summer months to maintaining the college's program of good works in Montreal. They visit mental patients at Verdun Protestant Hospital, help poor families keep a household together or act as "big brothers" to mentally retarded children.

WORK IN THE USA

Four students from Loyola are spending the summer helping social workers deal with an explosive teenage situation in El Paso, Texas. Other Loyola boys are working at a fresh air camp in New York state for youths of all nationalities from the lower East Side (otherwise known as Hell's Kitchen) of New York City.

The success of the Loyola students who helped fight teenage gang warfare in the same section of New York last summer can be seen in the request from social workers for more volunteers to staff the upstate camp for Manhattan youth.

ALUMNI 'AT HOME'

Plans are under way to hold a Loyola Alumni 'At Home' on October 28th.

Ralph Bourassa and his committee are now busy working out the final details but the general outline of the day and evening will run as follows: During the morning alumni and parents of students will be invited to the cornerstone laying ceremonies of the new science bloc, followed by a student-guided tour of the buildings and a sherry party later. During the afternoon there will be a football game at Trenholme Park. That evening there will be a dinner dance in the Champlain Room at the Mount Royal Hotel with music by the Peter Barry Orchestra. Senior and Junior students will also be invited to this dance. It is anticipated that many of the alumni will organize pre-party cocktail parties and that they will co-operate with the committee by inviting two or three student couples to their homes to meet a few alumni couples and thereby help them get to know some of their future confreres.

Full details of this 'At Home' will be mailed to all alumni on our mailing list at a later date.

NEW OFFICERS OF THE LOYOLA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Dr. Robert J. Brodrick, B.A. '43, was elected president by acclamation at the Annual General Meeting. Other officers of the executive elected by acclamation were: Eric W. Kierans, 1st vice-president; Henry (Harry) J. Hemens, QC, 2nd vice-president; Donald W. McNaughton, 3rd vice-president; Timothy P. Slattery, QC, MBE, honourary secretary; Val J. Chartier, honourary treasurer.

The four new directors, elected by ballot in a five-way race are: Kenneth F. Cassidy, Ross Hutchings, Garnet A. Parr and A. Patrick Wickham.

The non-elective members of the executive are: Very Rev. Patrick G. Malone, SJ, Rector of Loyola College; Rev. Thomas M. Moylan, SJ, moderator; James C. Wilson, immediate past president; Brien Noble, president of the Loyola Student Administrative Council.

Prior to his address to the alumni, outlining his plans and aims while in office, Dr. Brodrick paid tribute and expressed his and the members' thanks to Jim Wilson for his dedicated service to the Association while he was president and for the wonderful job he had done and the things he had accomplished while in office.

This annual meeting was very well attended and the smoker, following the business meeting, proved extremely popular. It gave many good friends an opportunity to meet and relax together over a long, cool drink.

The directors feel there is a strong desire on the part of the members to hold as many of the meetings and events as possible on campus. How do you feel on this matter?

Coinciding with this increase in facilities, Father Malone expects that the college's phenomenal growth — 300 per cent in the last five years — will continue.

However, Father Malone's most ambitious project for the 62-year-old institution is to see it receive, what he terms, a much deserved and long overdue university charter.

see concrete educational programmes that could bring alumni—and their wives — back to the school. Any program designed to bring alumni back to the campus and on an educational level is all to the good. In this way the College herself would be continuing to serve its alumni.

I have not specifically mentioned the pursuit of the university charter — the biggest job we have and the one that must take precedence over all others. Its importance is implicit in all my preceeding remarks, but I shall leave this discussion to Mr. Slatery and Father Rector.

I can promise you that your executive will work hard for we know we will be working in a climate of emergency for the next two or three years. This should stimulate our enthusiasm but we will need your enthusiasm to maintain ours. I will be making demands on many of you and would ask you to remember that to whom much has been given, much will be expected.

CUBAN DECREE

Fidel Castro May 1 forecast a Cuban government decree cancelling the residence permits of foreign priests — most of them Spanish, but including at least 100 Canadians. Early in May, 61 Canadian priests and nuns were flown back to Canada.

Father MacKinnon pointed out that the church since medieval times has had to reach agreement with various states.

He mentioned the Concordat of Worms in 1122, the Constitution of Clarendon in 1164, the Concordat of 1515 with France, the Concordat of 1801 between Napoleon and Pope Pius VII, the Concordat with Spain in 1851, the 1855 Concordat with Austria, the Lateran Pact in 1929 with Italy, and the Concordat with Adolf Hitler in 1933.

POLISH EXAMPLE

He cited the present situation in Communist Poland as an example of controlled priesthood.

In the mid-1950s Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski made what Father MacKinnon described as a "sort of gentleman's agreement" with Communist Premier Gomulka, under which the church would not oppose communist candidates in an election at that time.

In return, Father MacKinnon pointed out, Gomulka promised the church freedom in episcopal elections and the right to have religious teaching.

951, are leaving shortly to do social work in poor sections of Alabama and the West Indies.

Yet another type of volunteer work was entered into last summer when Loyola students, along with a contingent of volunteer workers from Pius X High School in Montreal, helped build schools in a lonely area of British Columbia 500 miles north of Vancouver.

The "Peace Corps" is a movement for social work springing from the general student body of the college, but is spearheaded by the Loyola Sodality, traditional leader of charitable activities in both Loyola College and Loyola High School.

EVERY SEVENTH STUDENT

The drive now numbers one of every seven students at the college, and will increase in scope next year, when the Student Administrative Council of Loyola College officially endorses and finances the movement.

The added money is important, as the student leaders find the only limit to their activity is financial — students are only too willing to give their time to "works of mercy."

The major activity of the students doing social work in Montreal this summer is providing what psychologists call "recreational therapy" for mental patients at Verdun Protestant Hospital.

CHESS AND TALK

Every Wednesday night students play chess, cards, or bingo — or just talk with 95 patients in a closed ward at the hospital. Some weeks, as part of their program of social activities, the Loyola boys take on the patients in a baseball game.

As with all of the "Peace Corps" activities, students find the work at the Verdun hospital has great rewards, but demands resourcefulness and maturity.

CLASS OF '29 REUNION

On Friday, June 23rd, Pat Nolan and his charming wife Kay, were hosts at an informal gathering of the Class of 1929.

Present were Harold Quinn, who came down from Toronto for the occasion, Ed Seeney, Ed La-Pierre, Phil McComber, Hullet Desbarats, Jack Hart, Jim Walsh, and Fathers George Foley, Gerald Brit, Michael Healy, John Ryan and Lionel Stanford.

The Nolan home, according to Father Stanford, lent itself admirably to this reunion and many memories were recalled, among them that of 'Missus' Hannibal in Spain.

So pleasant was the evening that those present hope another get-together will be held next year.

The new alumni president resides in Montreal West and has a summer home at Knowlton, Que. He was married shortly after his graduation from McGill to the former Eleanor Polan. They have three daughters (Lynne, 13; Jo Ann, 11; Laurie, 9) and two sons (Rob, 7; Mark, 4).

He played hockey with Montreal Royals Juniors and Royals Seniors while at Loyola, and was captain of McGill University hockey team — the 1945-46 inter-collegiate champions.

Even while doing post-graduate work in the United Kingdom, Bob managed to find enough time to play hockey in London and, in fact, to write a book entitled "Ice Hockey."

Bob became actively associated with the Loyola Alumni Association in the mid-1950s. He served as chairman of the Recognition Dinner from 1956 to 1958. He joined the executive in 1957, becoming first a director and later a vice-president, and retaining the latter post until his election to the presidency of the Association last May.
